Bill Read currently works as a consultant with Texas A&M Galveston and others on applied problems in meteorology. Bill retired as Director of the National Hurricane Center in 2012 after a distinguished career of 35 years at the National Weather Service. He was Meteorologist-in-Charge of the NWS Forecast Office in League City, Texas; Severe Storms & Flash Flood Program Leader at NWS HQ in Silver Spring, MD; Forecaster at NWS Fort Worth and San Antonio, TX; and was assigned to the NWS Test and Evaluation Division in Sterling, VA.

Bill served five years as an officer in the U.S. Navy where, among other assignments, he flew with the Navy Hurricane Hunters. Bill earned his Bachelors (’71) and Masters (’76) Degrees in Meteorology from Texas A&M University. He is a Fellow of the American Meteorological Society and has served as President of the National Weather Association.

Bill has been recognized for numerous awards, most recently for the Neal Frank award given at the 2015 National Hurricane Conference.

On the 1st, Bill will address recent hurricane history, including the costs of Hurricane Harvey, and offer predictions for the 2018 season.
