December 13, 2018 11:30 AM – 1:00 PM Hilton NASA Clear Lake

When “Ladies and Gentlemen, Now Forming at the North End of Kyle Field….” is announced over the stadium’s public address system, the entire crowd becomes electrified, quietly stands at attention, and is ready to enjoy nine minutes of half-time entertainment by the largest and finest military marching band in the world. For more than 30 years, that announcement has been made by December’s speaker Col. Jay Brewer.

Colonel Brewer joined the Aggie Band in the fall of 1977 and graduated with a B.S. in Mechanized Agriculture. He has served on the band staff since graduation. He studied music at Sam Houston State University, and later received his Masters Degree from Chicago’s VanderCook College of Music.

Colonel Brewer will provide an update on the “Band of 2018”: its size (now approximately 400) and student makeup; its increased participation at SEC away games; its participation in high profile, non-A&M related functions and events. Travel costs associated with the increasing demand for Aggie Band appearances will be addressed.

In addition to charting drills, teaching music, and counseling the band’s cadets, he is responsible for maintenance and inventory of the band’s instruments. In 2016, USA Today ranked the Aggie Band as #1 in the nation. Click on URLs below for videos of Brewer and the band.
