No other university has a tradition like Aggie Muster, when Texas Aggies seek each other out to gather every year, no matter where we are. Local Musters usually take place on or near April 21.

Musters can be held anywhere: a restaurant, a civic center or an Aggie's backyard. They can be casual or formal, and often include socializing, a meal or potluck dinner and drinks; many are family-friendly. Each Muster is unique!

Most Musters will include reading a Roll Call of local Aggies lost in the past year. To add a name, or volunteer to help with the event, contact your Muster chair at the link above. Read on for links that may help if you know families who need Muster assistance this year.

The Texas A&M tradition of Aggie Muster is over a century old and binds us together throughout our lives as students and former students, wherever we go across the globe. Hundreds of Musters fill the map at tx.ag/FindAMuster every year as April approaches.

Answer the call that went out in 1923: If there is an Aggie within 100 miles of you, get together!

Thanks and gig 'em,
