Additional Pathways

Aggie Gateway to Success Program

The Aggie Gateway to Success Program is a summer provisional admission program at Texas A&M University that is administered through Transition Academic Programs. Gateway students are given a unique chance to gain full admission by taking summer courses to prove they can succeed academically. Students are selected for participation in the Gateway program by the Office of Admissions. Admissions decisions to this program are announced beginning in February. tap.tamu.edu/gateway

Texas A&M Blinn TEAM Program

Some students will be admitted directly to the TEAM Program, a collaborative effort between Texas A&M University and Blinn College. Since its inception in 2001, this program has admitted hundreds of additional academically prepared students to the Texas A&M freshman class each year. Students are co-enrolled at Texas A&M and Blinn College and have most of the privileges of a full-time Texas A&M student. They can apply for on-campus housing, join clubs, attend sporting events and use campus facilities such as the libraries and Student Recreation Center. blinnteam.tamu.edu

Texas A&M Engineering Academy at Blinn (TEAB)

This program provides students who were not offered admission to the Dwight Look College of Engineering due to capacity an opportunity to pursue their engineering degree in a dual enrollment program between Texas A&M and Blinn College. Students are co-enrolled at Texas A&M and Blinn College and have most of the privileges of a full-time Texas A&M student. Full admission to the university is guaranteed after successful completion of the program. tx.ag/teab

Program for System Admission (PSA)

Some students who are not offered admission to Texas A&M University have an opportunity to participate in the Program for System Admission (PSA). These students enroll in one of Texas A&M's system schools and complete the required coursework in one year. Once these requirements are met, they are guaranteed admission to Texas A&M in College Station. Please note that participants may not be eligible for admission to all system schools.

Admission Decisions

For Freshmen admissions for Fall 2015, top ten and academic admit decisions are sent beginning mid-September and then occur weekly on a rolling basis. Review decisions begin at the end of October and continue until all decisions are out by mid-February. Students can log on to the Applicant Information System (AIS) to monitor the status of their application. Once admitted, students may register for their New Student Conference up until the deadline of May 1, 2015.

For transfer admissions for the Fall 2015 semester, decisions are made by the colleges with varying timelines. Decisions are typically made in early May for students who do not need to submit Spring 2015 grades for consideration. For those needing to submit Spring 2015 grades for consideration, the decisions will be made in late June or early July.

Graduate student decisions are made by each college and major on a rolling basis.

Priority Housing

With regard to housing, students (freshmen and transfers) must be officially admitted to Texas A&M before they are eligible to apply for on-campus housing. Housing assignments will be made on a first-come, first-served basis—established by the date in which the student's housing application is received. Priority housing will be given to freshmen who apply for housing within 30 days of being admitted to Texas A&M. Freshmen who apply for housing after 30 days of being admitted to Texas A&M will be considered for on-campus housing—if space is available and after all other priority students have been accommodated.
