Former Student Publishes Book on Life as Missionary

Allan Eubank '50 prays with his son David '83 before they part ways to serve separate missions in Thailand

Rev. L. Allan Eubank '50 recently published a book about his experiences as a missionary in Thailand over the past 42 years.

Eubank and his wife Joan went to Thailand in 1961 where they studied language and worked in Rural Development and Church Planning for eight years. Allan worked eight years in rural Thailand under Thai Christian Leadership as an evangelist and spent 28 years as a professor at what is now Payap University in Chiang Mai, Northern Thailand. In 1981, Allan founded the Christian Communications Institute (CCI) and served as director for 14 years, during which time he and Joan established four churches. Joan wrote dramas and songs, and trained singers, actors, and directors to use every art form possible to communicate the Gospel in ways easily understood by the Thai people. The Thai government enlisted the folk group to design dramas to address problems with drugs, HIV, and prostitution and help change behavior and educate the Thai people.
