JOIN US ON A COMPREHENSIVE 15-DAY JOURNEY THROUGH THE SPLENDORS OF WEST BENGAL: CRUISING THE LOWER GANGES. Brimming with political intrigue, religious significance, natural wonders, and economic potential, India has captured the imagination of world travelers and fueled the desires of conquering rulers from Alexander the Great to Queen Victoria. Along the nation's eastern border, in the state of West Bengal, the Ganges River is revered as a life-giving force and sacred to those who practice the Hindu faith.

In the southern Ganges, where the larger river gives way to smaller tributaries, well-preserved landmarks tell the tales of India's ancient history, colonization, and the long road to independence. Remote villages – untouched by the commercialization of big cities – offer opportunities to experience the local cultures first-hand, and perhaps make a few new friends.

Built in 1809 by the Bardhaman Maharaja, this complex contains 108 sloped-roof temples, dedicated to the Hindu god Shiva and arranged in two concentric circles. The outer circle consists of 74 temples of alternating black and white lingams; the 34 temples of the inner circle have only white lingams. On the other side of the road we'll find a walled complex containing the Pratapeshwar temple. A lovely example of life in rural India in the 18th century, the village of Baranagar features several temples built by Rani Bhabani, a beloved local aristocrat (zamindar) and generous philanthropist. These temples are considered to be among the finest examples of terra cotta art in West Bengal. After visiting the temples, we'll return to the ship for lunch and sail downstream past charming villages to the city of Murshidabad.
